What is a Joint program?

A Joint Program is a formally coordinated academic pathway offered through a partnership between two institutions. Unlike a general transfer arrangement, a joint program is designed from the outset as one planned route to a single academic outcome. Students begin their studies at one institution and continue at the partner institution within a shared academic framework that supports progression from the first stage of study through to graduation.

In the Alexander College and Kwantlen Polytechnic University joint programs:

Joint Program Model

AC (Year 1–2) → KPU (Year 3–4) → Degree

- Students complete the first 1.5 to 2 years at Alexander College
- Then continue 2 years at Kwantlen Polytechnic University
- Students apply to both institutions and receive dual admission
- One credential — a bachelor's degree from KPU — is awarded

This model offers students more than flexibility. It offers a clearly defined academic plan, coordinated progression, and confidence in how their studies will continue across both institutions.

Joint Programs

- Bachelor of Arts (see available majors)
- Bachelor of Science (see available majors)

Why choose the Alexander College and KPU Joint Program?

This Joint Program partnership is designed for students who want a clear and well-supported path to degree completion. It combines the advantages of beginning in Alexander College's supportive and student-focused learning environment with the opportunity to complete upper-level university study at Kwantlen Polytechnic University.

Students who choose this pathway benefit from:

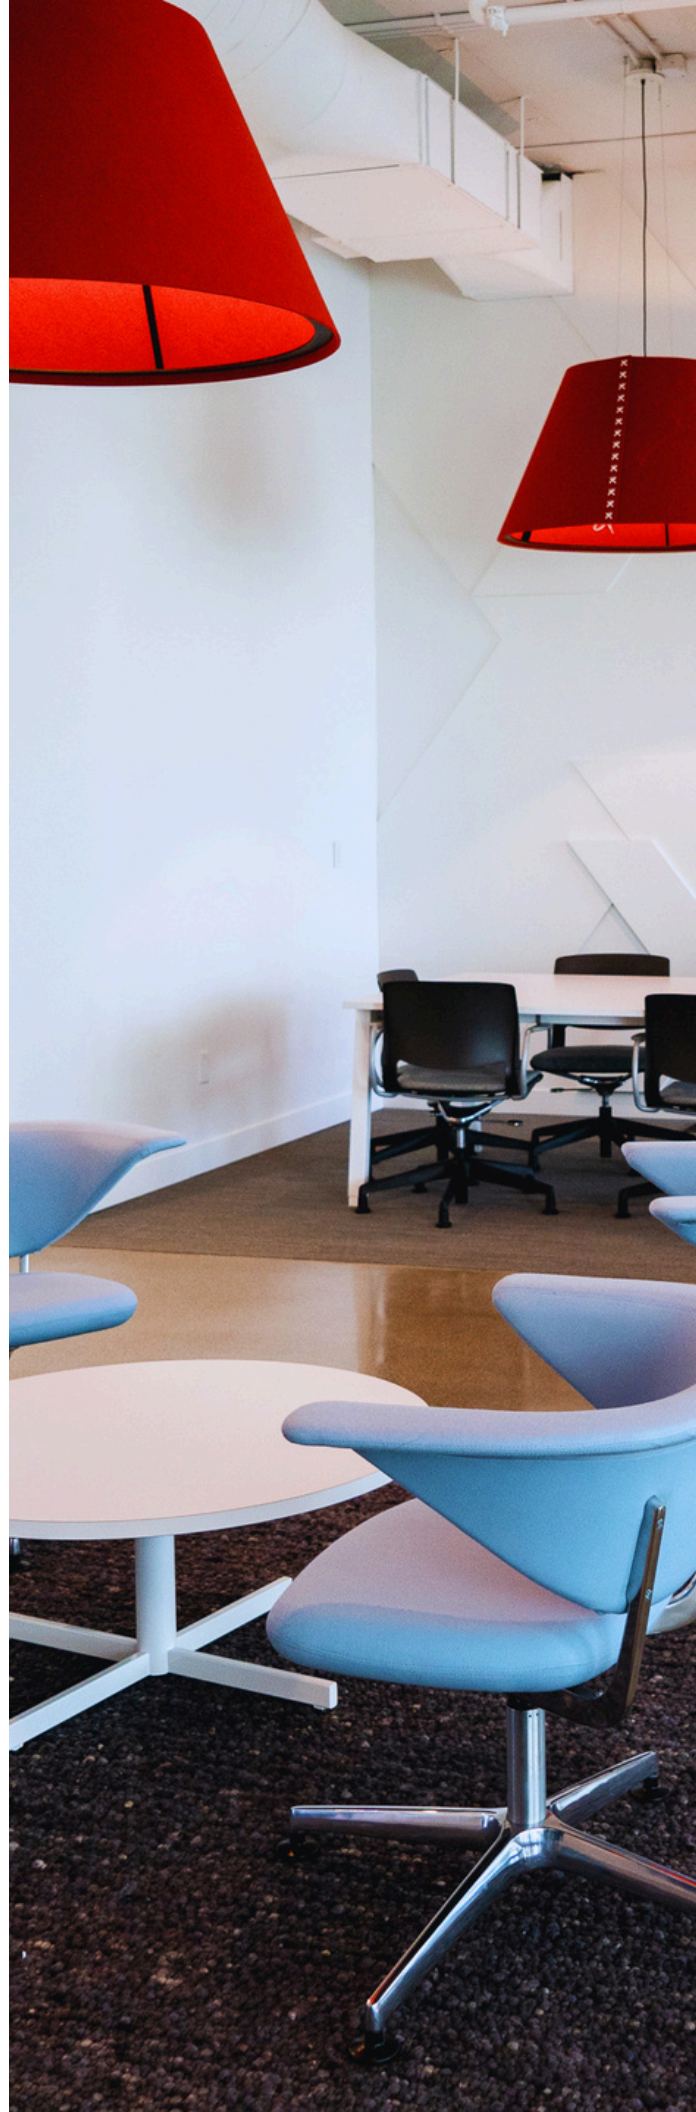

- A clearly mapped academic route from the start of the program
- Dual admission to Alexander College and Kwantlen Polytechnic University
- The opportunity to begin in a smaller learning environment
- A planned transition to upper-level study at KPU
- One bachelor's degree awarded by Kwantlen Polytechnic University

Who is this program for?

This pathway is well suited for students who:

- Want a direct route to a bachelor's degree
- Value academic planning and long-term certainty
- Prefer to begin in a smaller, more personalized college environment
- Want a coordinated transition into upper-level university study

It is an excellent option for students who want to start strong, build confidence in the early stages of study, and move forward with a clear plan toward graduation.
