IMPORTANT POLICIES

We encourage you to take the time to familiarize yourself with our important policies, as they serve as a foundation for a positive and productive educational experience. These guidelines address key areas such as health insurance, enrolment status, attendance expectations, and the code of conduct. By understanding and adhering to these policies, you will not only enhance your own academic journey but also contribute to a supportive and respectful environment for your peers.

Health Insurance

All residents of British Columbia must have valid medical insurance in case of an accident or illness. The province's healthcare provider is the BC Medical Services Plan (MSP). Enrolment in MSP is mandatory for all eligible residents.

Students at Alexander College need to provide proof of medical insurance to register for courses.

If you are a domestic or international student enrolled with BC MSP, send a copy of your BC Services card to your Enrolment Advisor (EA) or the Registrar's Office.

You can find your Enrolment Advisor contact information on the Application Status page of your MyAC student portal.

If you are not enrolled in BC MSP, or if you need to replace a lost card or renew your coverage, contact the Registrar's Office (Registration unit). They will help you to apply online. You can reach them by phone at 604-435-5815, available Mon-Fri, 9:00 am - 4 pm PST, or by email at registration@alexandercollege.ca.

Newcomers to BC must wait 90 days before MSP coverage starts. Therefore, you need to get temporary private medical insurance in case of an emergency during this waiting period. Alexander College is not responsible for any medical, dental, or health-related expenses that students incur.

IMPORTANT POLICIES

Full-Time Enrolment Status

To be considered a full-time student, you need to meet one of these requirements:

1. Take 3 or more university transfer-level courses during the Fall, Winter, or Spring terms
2. Complete UPRE 099
3. Take ENGL 099 along with one university transfer-level course.

During the Summer Intensive, you must complete 2 or more university transfer-level courses. Please note that UPRE and EAP are not available during the Summer Intensive because the term is shorter.

Summer Intensive is treated as a regular break.

For more information about study authorization and scheduled breaks, please visit the Alexander College website under Study Authorization and Scheduled Breaks.

Attendance

In undergraduate classes, teachers can require students to attend at least 70% of the time.

If you miss too many classes when minimum attendance is required, you won't be able to take the final exam for the course. Each teacher will explain their rules about attendance in the course syllabus.

Attendance for International Students

International students with study permits must attend classes regularly. The school needs to keep track of attendance and report it to the government, so teachers will take attendance even if it doesn't count toward grades.

Alexander College expects students to be on time for class. Each teacher will have their own rules about being late, which will be in the syllabus.

If you cannot make it to class, let your teacher know as soon as you can. Follow the instructions in the syllabus about how to notify them, usually through the Canvas LMS.

If you think you need an exception to the attendance rules, you can file an appeal. Fill out the Attendance Policy Request form, attach any evidence, and email it to the Office of Student Rights and Responsibilities at srr@alexandercollege.ca.

IMPORTANT POLICIES

Code of Conduct

Students must follow the college's behavior standards. If they do not, the college will file a misconduct report, which can lead to various consequences. There are two types of misconduct:

2. Non-Academic Misconduct

Academic Misconduct

This includes serious actions such as:

- Submitting False Information: Providing inaccurate information or false documents related to academic work.
- Helping Others Cheat: Assisting another student in committing any form of Academic Misconduct.
- Using AI: Using Artificial Intelligence tools to complete or change assignments without permission from the instructor.

Non-Academic Misconduct

This includes behaviors that disrupt the college environment. Such as:

- Disrupting Classes: Interrupting teachers or students during lectures or online classes.
- Damaging Property: Intentionally harming or misusing college or personal property.
- Inappropriate Communication: Using disrespectful language in person or online with staff and students, such as arguing about grades or ignoring requests to stop contacting someone.

- Assault: Causing physical or emotional harm to someone, either in person or online.
- Substance Violations: Using alcohol or drugs on campus or encouraging others to do so.
- Breaking Laws: Committing actions that violate the laws of British Columbia or Canada.

Knowing these rules can help students contribute to a respectful and safe college environment.

IMPORTANT POLICIES

Academic standing is updated four times each academic year after final grades is released at the end of the fall, winter, spring, and summer terms.

- Good Academic Standing: You are in good academic standing if your term GPA is 1.50 or higher, and you are not under Academic Alert, Probation, or Suspension.
- Notice to Students at Risk: Starting in Fall 2024, students with a term GPA of at least 1.50 but below the required minimum cumulative GPA of 2.00 will receive an email from the Registrar's Office. This email will remind you of the program requirements and the academic support available.
- Academic Warning: You will receive an Academic Warning if you have attempted fewer than 15 credits, and your term GPA is below 1.50.
- Academic Probation: You will be placed on Academic Probation if you have attempted at least 15 credits, and your cumulative GPA is below 1.50. You can be on probation for two consecutive terms. If you raise your cumulative GPA to 1.50 or higher within these two terms, you will return to good academic standing. While on probation, you may not attempt more than 10 credits in one term.
- Academic Suspension: If you do not raise your GPA to 1.50 or higher after two terms of probation, you will be placed on Academic Suspension. This means you cannot enroll in university-level courses until your academic performance improves.

You can be reinstated in good standing in two ways:

- Complete UPRE 099 – University Preparation successfully. If you pass UPRE 099, you will be readmitted in good standing.
- Successfully complete 9 or more transferable credits at another BCCAT member institution in a single term with a term GPA of 1.50 or higher, after your last term at Alexander College. If you present this record, you will be reinstated in good standing.

You can be on Academic Suspension for a maximum of two consecutive terms. If you are not reinstated in good standing within this time, you will no longer be registered at Alexander College.

- Reinstatement after Academic Probation or Suspension: If you are reinstated after probation or suspension and your term GPA falls below 1.50 again, you will be placed on academic probation once more. The same probation rules will apply.

CANADIAN CULTURE

Canada is known for its friendly and welcoming culture, where respect, kindness, and inclusivity are highly valued. The country embraces diversity, with people from various cultural backgrounds living harmoniously together. Canadian society emphasizes politeness and consideration for others, whether in social interactions, public behavior, or daily activities. Understanding and following social etiquette, respecting personal space, and adhering to laws and customs are important aspects of Canadian life.

- Respect & Social Etiquette: Canadians value politeness—saying “please” and “thank you” is expected. A handshake is a common greeting when meeting someone new. Respect personal space and avoid overly personal questions about wealth, weight, or age. Allow others to finish speaking before responding and maintain eye contact in conversations. If there is a line, always queue and wait your turn.
- Punctuality & Time Management: Being on time is important for school, work, and social events. If someone asks you to arrive at a certain time, they usually expect you to be there on time. Unexplained lateness of more than 15 minutes is considered disrespectful—if delayed, send a quick message to let the person know. Arriving too early (more than 15 minutes) can also be inconvenient for a host who is not yet ready.
- Public Behavior & Laws: Loud conversations, name-calling, and violence are unacceptable. Threatening or harming others, including family members, is against the law. It is strictly prohibited to drive under the influence of drugs or alcohol.
- Smoking, Alcohol & Drugs: Smoking is banned in most public spaces, including restaurants, parks, and workplaces. The legal drinking age is 19+. Illicit drugs are illegal, but hospitals and police can provide help without penalty if needed.
- Environmental Awareness: Canadians take environmental responsibility seriously. Littering is unacceptable and can result in fines. Recycling and waste reduction are strongly encouraged.
- Tipping Culture: Tipping is expected for services such as restaurants, taxis, and hair salons. The standard tip is 15-20% of the total bill.
- Language & Cultural Diversity: Canada has two official languages: English and French. While English is spoken in most provinces, French is more common in Quebec. Canada is known for its inclusivity, fairness, and respect for different cultures, backgrounds, and religions.

CLASSROOM ETIQUETTE

As you begin your academic journey at our college, we want to ensure that you feel supported and prepared to succeed. Your time here will be an exciting opportunity to grow both academically and personally.

To help you navigate your classroom experience, here are some important etiquette tips. Remember, you can always seek help from our Student Support Services, as well as free tutoring through the Writing and Learning Center (WLC), where you can get assistance with both writing and other subjects.

- Use English in Class: English Only to help you improve your language skills and make the classroom experience better for everyone. Use English during lessons, group activities, and discussions. Don't worry if you make mistakes—learning is part of the process! Ask for help. If you don't understand a word or phrase, feel free to ask for clarification. Your professor and classmates will support you in learning and communicating effectively.
- Be On Time: Arriving to class on time shows respect for your professor and classmates. If you're late, try to enter quietly and avoid disrupting the class.
- Be Prepared: Bring all the materials you'll need for class textbooks, notebooks, and any assignments or notes. Being prepared helps you stay organized and shows that you take your studies seriously.
- Listen Actively: Pay attention when the professor or your classmates are speaking. Show that you're engaged by nodding, making eye contact, and asking questions when appropriate. Active listening will help you understand the material better.
- Respect Class Discussions: Everyone's opinion is valuable, and international students bring diverse perspectives that can enrich classroom discussions. Speak up when you feel comfortable but be respectful of others' views. Wait for your turn to speak and avoid interrupting.
- Ask Questions When Needed: Don't hesitate to ask your professor or classmates if something is unclear. It's better to ask for clarification than to miss out on important information. Remember, asking questions is part of learning.
- Use Office Hours: Professors often have office hours where you can ask for extra help. If you don't fully understand a concept, visit them during office hours or arrange for an appointment.
- Stay Focused During Lectures: Avoid distractions like using your phone or chatting with classmates during lectures. Stay focused on the lesson to get the most out of your time in class.
- Be Respectful of Different Cultures: You will meet students from many different backgrounds. Be respectful of cultural differences and avoid making assumptions or judgments. Embrace diversity as an opportunity to learn and grow.
- Work Collaboratively: Many courses involve group work. Be a proactive and cooperative team member. Be clear and patient when communicating with classmates, especially when language barriers exist.
- Turn Off Mobile Devices: Keep your phone on silent or turn it off during class. Constant texting or checking your phone can disrupt the learning environment.
- Respect the Classroom Environment: Keep the classroom tidy by cleaning up after yourself. Be mindful of others' space and always follow the college's rules and regulations.
- Stay Engaged During Online Classes: If you're attending classes remotely, make sure you're in a quiet space with minimal distractions. Turn on your camera when asked and actively participate in class discussions.
- Give Yourself Time to Adjust: Remember, adjusting to a new country and educational system takes time. Be patient with yourself, and don't be afraid to seek help if you're feeling overwhelmed.

INDIGENOUS PEOPLES IN CANADA

Canada's Indigenous Peoples include First Nations, Inuit, and Métis. Vancouver is on the unceded territories of the Musqueam, Squamish, and Tsleil-Waututh Nations, meaning the land was never legally surrendered through treaties. Unlike many parts of Canada, where treaties were signed between the government and Indigenous groups, most of British Columbia remains unceded Indigenous land.

Indigenous cultures are incredibly diverse, with over 50 languages spoken across Canada. Their traditions are deeply rooted in connection with the land, spiritual beliefs, and communal ways of living. However, Indigenous people have faced historical injustices, including the Indian Act, which still governs many aspects of their lives, and residential schools, which attempted to erase their cultures.

TREATIES AND INDIGENOUS RIGHTS

In many parts of Canada, treaties—legal agreements between Indigenous Nations and the Canadian government—were signed to define land rights and relationships. These treaties were meant to establish peaceful coexistence and recognize Indigenous land ownership. However, in practice, the Canadian government often failed to honor these agreements, leading to land dispossession, broken promises, and legal battles that continue today.

Unlike the rest of Canada, British Columbia has very few treaties. This means most of the land remains unceded, and many Indigenous communities are still fighting for recognition of their land rights and self-governance. Today, modern treaty negotiations and legal rulings continue to shape Indigenous land rights, self-determination, and reconciliation efforts.

WHY IS IT IMPORTANT FOR NEWCOMERS TO LEARN ABOUT INDIGENOUS COMMUNITIES?

As newcomers to Canada, it's important to understand the history and experiences of Indigenous Peoples, who have lived on this land for thousands of years. Many immigrants arrive in Canada knowing little about Indigenous communities because mainstream education and media often overlook or misrepresent their histories.

Learning about Indigenous rights, treaties, and reconciliation helps newcomers

- Understand Canadian history more fully – Canada is built on Indigenous lands and recognizing this is key to understanding the country's past and present.
- Challenge stereotypes and misinformation – Many immigrants are only exposed to negative or misleading portrayals of Indigenous people. Learning directly from Indigenous perspectives fosters respect and empathy.
- Build meaningful relationships – Just as immigrants have their own histories, struggles, and traditions, Indigenous communities have rich cultures and ongoing movements for justice. Connecting with these communities creates solidarity.
- Engage in reconciliation – The Canadian Government, and society, are working toward repairing relationships with Indigenous Peoples. Newcomers can take part by acknowledging the past, supporting Indigenous initiatives, and learning about Indigenous cultures.

RESIDENTIAL SCHOOLS & TRUTH AND RECONCILIATION

From the late 1800s to 1996, the Canadian government and churches ran residential schools, where Indigenous children were forcibly taken from their families, forbidden from speaking their languages, and often subjected to neglect and abuse. The effects of these schools are still felt today, leading to intergenerational trauma, loss of cultural knowledge, and socio-economic challenges in Indigenous communities.

In response, the Truth and Reconciliation Commission (TRC) was established to investigate the impact of residential schools and promote healing. The TRC issued 94 Calls to Action to help repair relationships between Indigenous and non-Indigenous Canadians. Orange Shirt Day (September 30), now recognized as the National Day for Truth and Reconciliation, honors residential school survivors and raises awareness of the ongoing impact of colonization. People wear orange shirts to acknowledge the harm done and to show solidarity with Indigenous communities.

INDIGENOUS CULTURES & LEARNING OPPORTUNITIES

Vancouver offers many opportunities to learn about Indigenous cultures. You can visit:

- Totem poles in Stanley Park
- The Museum of Anthropology, which features Indigenous art and artifacts
- The Bill Reid Gallery of Northwest Coast Art, showcasing contemporary Indigenous artists
- Public art by Indigenous artists, including works created for the 2010 Olympics

Additionally, the Vancouver Aboriginal Friendship Centre (1607 E Hastings St) provides cultural programs, community events, sports, and youth activities for Indigenous people and welcomes others to learn and participate.

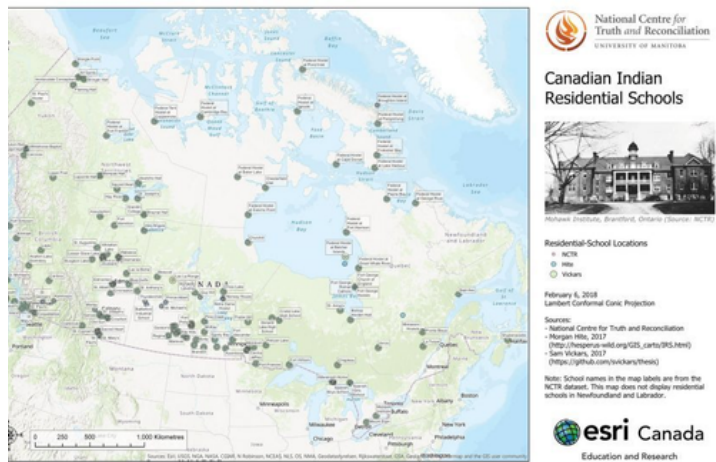

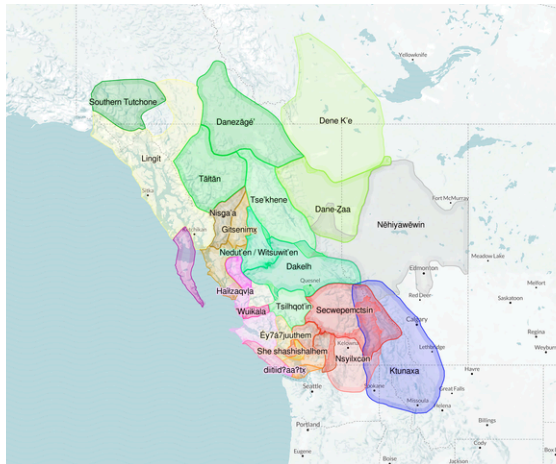

DISPELLING MYTHS ABOUT INDIGENOUS PEOPLES

- Myth: Indigenous people do not pay taxes.
Fact: They pay taxes like all Canadians, with limited exceptions for purchases or income on reserves.
- Myth: Indigenous cultures were primitive.
Fact: They had complex systems of governance, trade, and agriculture.
- Myth: Residential schools are in the past.
Fact: Their lasting impact is still seen today in the form of trauma, poverty, and systemic barriers.
- Myth: All Indigenous people receive free university education.
Fact: Only some receive funding, and many do not get financial support.

MOVING FORWARD

In recent years, Canada has taken steps toward reconciliation, including the work of the Truth and Reconciliation Commission. Indigenous and immigrant communities are finding new ways to connect, share stories, and build understanding. Learning about Indigenous history and culture, participating in events like Orange Shirt Day, and supporting Indigenous initiatives are important steps toward respect and inclusion.

VANCOUVER WEATHER

Vancouver has the mildest fluctuation of temperature compared to the rest of Canada. Rain is common in Vancouver, especially during the fall months between September to December and spring from March to April.

This has earned the city the nickname 'Raincouver'.

You will find that summer in Vancouver is particularly lovely. We are lucky to receive a ton of sunshine, and warm weather that, at times, goes up to 28 degrees Celsius. You can bet that our beaches are packed!

If you love water sports, summertime calls for plenty of days basking in the sunshine on our multitude of beaches around the city.

If staying dry is your preference, there are over 30 hiking trails and bike routes throughout Metro Vancouver and the surrounding area.

In the winter months, with temperatures sometimes dropping to -7 degrees Celsius, winter sports such as skiing and snowboarding are popular activities that you can partake in. There are also several indoor and outdoor skating rinks where you can rent a pair of skates and enjoy ice skating.

Before making a decision, be sure to research the different accounts available. Some banks offer special promotions for international students, so it's a good idea to gather all the necessary information.

TRANSPORTATION

The Vancouver transit system, known as TransLink, is a great way for you to quickly familiarize yourself with getting around the city. You can use the SkyTrain and various bus lines to get to where you need to go.

A great app to download that would help navigate the system is the Translink Phone App. The app allows you to check schedules and plan your route. Alternatively, you can also use Google Maps or Apple Maps to look up where you need to go.

TRANSLINK

The SkyTrain consists of three main lines: the Expo Line, the Millenium Line, and the Canada Line. The Expo Line, the oldest and longest line of the three SkyTrain lines, connects Surrey to Burnaby and downtown Vancouver.

As an Alexander College student, the Expo Line should be the most familiar to you as both campuses are connected by the Expo Line. The next line to be added to the SkyTrain system is the Millenium Line in 2002. With the addition of the Evergreen Extension in 2006, this line connects Coquitlam and North Burnaby to Vancouver.

Lastly, the Canada Line was added in 2009, which provides direct access to the Vancouver International Airport \(YVR\) and parts of Richmond from downtown Vancouver. For those just arriving in Vancouver, the Canada Line may be the first experience they have when taking public transportation.

SkyTrain Map and Fares

One important thing to note about the TransLink fare system is that you pay by the number of zones travelled. Metro Vancouver is split into 3 fare zones and the fare you pay depends on how many zones you cross during your trip.

If you travel over the weekends and holidays or weekdays after 6:30pm, your entire trip is considered as 1-zone. These are very useful things to keep in mind if you want to save money!

TransLink offers a fare estimator on their website so you can double check how much your trip will cost before you go. You can pay for your trip using any of the ticket vending machines located at any SkyTrain, SeaBus, and West Coast Express station or on buses. You can also use your Compass Card or certain forms of contactless card payment. Keep in mind that you cannot purchase a day pass on buses.

COMPASS CARDS

Introduced to Metro Vancouver in 2013 and fully implemented in 2015, the Compass Card is a transit card that lets people quickly tap into fare gates located in SkyTrain and SeaBus stations or Compass Card readers on buses.

You can check your balance and add value to your Compass Card through the Compass Card website or a ticket vending machine. You can set up your card to automatically reload value when the stored value on the card drops below a certain threshold on the website.

For those who frequently use public transportation to travel, monthly passes are also available for purchase. Looking for a day trip option? Day passes can also be purchased and loaded onto your Compass Card from the website or at a ticket machine.

Additionally, using a Compass Card to travel around Vancouver is cheaper than using cash or other forms of contactless payment, so maximize your savings by getting your own Compass Card from Compass Card vending machines located in SkyTrain, SeaBus and West Coast Express stations, or your local London Drugs.

TAXI/UBER/LYFT

We also now have ride-sharing services such as Lyft available in Vancouver, as well as various taxi companies. Keep in mind, these tend to be the most expensive methods of transportation, and the costs may vary during different times of the day based on distance and demand.

Alexander College campuses are located central to a variety of public transport options.

3. Understand your lease – Read rental agreements carefully before signing.
4. Check transportation access – Ensure your home is close to transit.
5. Budget wisely – Consider rent, utilities, and other expenses.

Tenant Rights and Support

As a tenant in British Columbia, you are protected under the Residential Tenancy Act. Know your rights, including:

- Your landlord must provide a safe and livable home.
- Your security deposit must be returned unless there's damage.
- Rent increases must follow legal guidelines.
- Your landlord cannot evict you without proper notice.

For more information, visit the Government of BC's Tenancy Rights Page.

AVOIDING SCAMS

As an international student, it's important to be aware of common scams and how to protect yourself from fraud. Scammers often target students because they may be new to the country and less familiar with local laws and services.

Here are some examples of common scams and how to avoid falling for them:

Phishing Emails and Calls

Phishing scams involve fraudsters pretending to be legitimate organizations, like your bank, the government, or your school, to steal your personal information.

Example: You receive an email from someone claiming to be from Service Canada, saying your Social Insurance Number (SIN) is about to expire and asking you to click on a link to "update" your SIN information. The link takes you to a fake website that asks for your SIN, passport details, and bank account information.

Safety Tip: Never respond to unsolicited emails, phone calls, or text messages asking for personal information. Always verify the legitimacy of the request by contacting the organization directly through official contact details from their website or documents.

Fake Job Offers

Scammers sometimes offer fake job opportunities that seem too good to be true, asking for upfront payments for training or equipment.

Example: You get an email about a high-paying part-time job in a marketing company that requires a $200 fee for a "background check" or "training materials." Once you pay, the company disappears, and you never hear back.

Safety Tip: Never pay money upfront for a job or training. Legitimate employers will not ask you to pay for a job. Research the employer online and check for reviews or information about them. Be wary of job offers that ask for your personal details but don't provide verifiable company information.

Fake Rental Listings

Some scammers post fake rental ads, asking for deposits upfront without showing you the property in person. These listings might even feature photos of properties that aren't for rent.

Example: You find an apartment listing online that looks great, and the "landlord" asks you to wire them a deposit to secure the apartment. However, when you arrive, the apartment doesn't exist, and the landlord is unreachable.

Safety Tip: Visit the property before making any payments. If the landlord asks for money via wire transfer or gift cards, it's likely a scam. Always insist on using official payment methods.

Immigration or Study Permit Scams

Some scammers claim they can help you fast-track your study permit application or immigration process for a fee. They might promise guaranteed success or faster processing times.

Example: A company claims they can “guarantee” your study permit approval for a fee and asks for your passport and payment details upfront. There’s no way to guarantee a visa approval.

Safety Tip: Only use official government websites for immigration or study permit information. Never pay anyone to guarantee your study permit approval.

Fake Scholarship or Financial Aid Offers:

Scammers may try to trick you into paying for access to scholarships or financial aid that don't exist. They may say you've won a scholarship but require you to pay a “processing fee” first.

Example: You receive an email telling you that you've been selected for a large scholarship but need to pay a processing fee of $500 to claim it. After paying, you never hear from them again.

Safety Tip: Scholarships are never paid for by the student. Be cautious of emails or messages offering financial aid in exchange for payment. If you receive a scholarship offer, research the scholarship and check with your university or school to see if it's legitimate.

Fake Bank or Credit Card Scams

Some scams involve fraudsters pretending to be from your bank or credit card company, asking for account details, PIN numbers, or credit card information.

Example: You get a phone call from someone claiming to be from your bank, saying they need to verify your account details for security purposes and asking for your credit card number or banking login.

Safety Tip: Never give out your bank or credit card information over the phone, email, or text message. If you get a suspicious call, hang up and call your bank directly using the number on their official website to verify the request.

General Tips for Protecting Yourself from Scams

- Trust your instincts: If something feels off, it's okay to say no or take some time to think it over.
- Secure your personal information: Avoid sharing sensitive details, like your SIN, bank account, or passport number, unless you're sure the request is legitimate.
- Use secure websites: When shopping online or entering personal details, ensure the website is secure (look for “https” in the URL).

Report any scam attempts: If you've been targeted by a scam, report it to Consumer Protection BC or Service Canada.

By staying vigilant and following these tips, you can protect yourself from scams and enjoy your time in Canada without falling victim to fraud.

However, it's essential to understand the specific regulations that apply to you as a student, including the conditions on your study permit and visa.

Before you start working, always confirm the rules related to working based on your visa and study permit to ensure that you are following Canadian immigration laws. Different permits may have different restrictions, such as the number of hours you can work, whether you're eligible for on-campus or off-campus work, and if you need additional work permits for co-op or internships.

TAXES

What is the CRA?

The Canada Revenue Agency (CRA) is the government department that:

- Collects taxes
- Provides benefits and payments (like tax refunds or student benefits)

Do International Students Need to File Taxes?

Yes, as an international student in Canada, you may need to file a tax return. To do this correctly, you must first figure out your residency status.

✓ Key Things to Know

- 01 Understand your tax residency status.
- 02 Get a SIN (Social Insurance Number) — This is required to work or file taxes.
- 03 Learn about Canadian tax brackets — This estimates your tax based on income.
- 04 Report all income — This includes jobs, scholarships, or money from outside Canada.
- 05 Ask for help if needed — It's better to ask questions than risk filing incorrectly or late.

Understanding Tax Residency

Your residency status affects how you are taxed in Canada. You may be classified as one of the following: resident, non-resident, deemed resident, deemed non-resident.

What Makes You a Resident?

You're likely a resident if you have strong personal ties to Canada. These are called residential ties.

Major ties include

- A home in Canada
- A spouse or partner living in Canada
- Children or other dependents in Canada

Other ties may include:

- Personal belongings like a car or furniture in Canada
- Memberships in Canadian clubs or organizations
- A Canadian bank account or credit card
- A Canadian driver's license or passport
- Health insurance from a Canadian province or territory

Not Sure If You're a Resident?

You are likely not a resident if:

- You regularly return to your home country for long periods
- You move to another country when not attending school in Canada

You may be a deemed resident if:

- You stay in Canada for 183 days or more in a year
- Your home country does not have a tax treaty with Canada

You may be a deemed non-resident if:

- Canada has a tax treaty with your home country
- That treaty considers you a resident of your home country instead of Canada

In that case, the same rules apply to you as they do for non-residents.

Filing Taxes: What Should You Do?

Your residency status will determine how to file your taxes:

- If you are a resident, follow the rules for Canadian residents or newcomers
- If you are a non-resident, follow the rules for non-residents
- If you are a deemed resident, follow deemed resident rules
- If you are a deemed non-resident, follow non-resident rules

Need Help? If you're unsure about your residency status, you can submit Form NR74 to the CRA for an official decision.
